

CONTENTS

List of figures xi

List of tables xiii

About the author and his company xv

Preface xvii

PART ONE The end of the world as we know it 1

Introduction to disruptive selling: start from scratch 3

Taken from real life 3

The copier 3

Return 7

01 Disruption – understanding the new way of selling 9

Some important questions 9

Making a start 10

New insights 11

Marketing automation 12

Disruptive selling 13

CRM 14

Other tools 15

Notes 16

02 Creating connections with the new customer through disruptive selling 17

Copycat behaviour 17

The unconscious barriers to customer satisfaction 26

Once empowered, always empowered 27

Cross-contamination 28

B2B and B2C are coming together 29

Learning to look at things in a new light 32

There is no excuse for being boring 34

Notes 39

PART TWO There is no excuse for being boring 41

03 Creating your value proposition for disruptive selling 43

- Putting the customer at the centre 43
- The customer journey 48
- Personae 56
- Initial consideration 58
- Eight seconds, no longer 59
- Active evaluation 60
- Post-purchase 61
- Social trackers 62
- Contact strategy 67
- The end of selling ice to the Eskimos 67
- Targets and sustainability 68
- The customer does the work 71
- Deliver the goods 73
- Value debundling 75
- Customer experience design 79
- Why over-delivery is not good 80
- Notes 82

PAR THREE Turning opportunity into sales results 85

04 Using people and resources within your disruption strategy 87

- The times they are a-changin' 87
- The Triple-A model: authenticity, accountability and agility 90
- Working with objectives and key results 97
- Digital becomes human 98
- The rise of the marketeer 99
- Changes in sales, marketing and customer service 101
- Lead generation 109
- Getting new clients via Facebook and Instagram 111
- The importance of LinkedIn as a sales engine 113
- Lead nurturing, scoring, qualification and conversion 116
- Value delivery 120
- Customer feedback 121

Management and control 122
Continuous improvement 124
Talent development 125
Notes 128

05 Exploring automation and technology for disruptive selling 131

Why marketing automation? 131
What does marketing automation make possible? 133
The headache called CRM 134
Basic functionalities 137
Monitoring of online behaviour 137
Email marketing 138
Dynamic communication 139
CRM and contact management 141
Lead scoring and nurturing 141
Drip marketing and alerts 144
Analysis and reporting 145
App tracking and beacons 147
Something for everyone 150
Choosing from 5,381 marketing technology solutions 152
The end of talking, the rise of texting 155
How to make your choice 158
The place of marketing technology in your organization 161
The added value of marketing technology 161
Notes 164

06 Augmented and virtual reality in business 167

A new reality? 167
Notes 175

PART FOUR Lead, follow or get out of the way 177

07 Executing dynamic disruption and perpetual readiness 179

21st-century selling 179
Technological singularity 179
HAL's message 182

The internet of things 182
Automation to automation 184
My bot talks to your bot, and they get along fine 188
Crystalknows 193
Notes 195

08 The new age of disruptive selling – from reading to doing 197

Output 197
Choosing the technology 198
People 199
The implementation plan 201
Communication 202
Note 203

Index 205