

CONTENTS

About the author ix

Foreword by Gerry Walsh xi

Introduction 1

01 Professional growth in procurement 11

Recruiting 12

Training and qualification 13

Peer review 18

Mentoring 20

Career management 20

Acquisition myths 21

02 Defining the need 39

03 Specifying the requirement 47

The performance specification 50

The prescriptive specification 53

The combination specification 54

Characteristics of a good specification 56

Summary 58

04 Chunking the work (aka acquisition strategy) 59

Contractor complacency 61

Retaining the option to exercise an option 62

The price of supply chain layering 63

The virtues of a managed service provider 64

There is no replacement for doing the homework 66

Key points 71

- 05 Competitively selecting the ideal source 73
 - Early engagement with the supply chain 74
 - Minimizing competition-killing pre-qualification 77
 - Allocating risk 80
 - The source evaluation board: conducting competitive evaluation and selection 80

- 06 Devising an incentivized contract for alignment 89
 - Cost-sharing (target cost) contracting 92
 - Non-financial objectives worth incentivizing 98
 - Award fee contracting 99
 - Pre-negotiation plans 102
 - Key points 105

- 07 Supporting the contractor 107
 - The role of the contract manager 108

- 08 Enforcing the contract 117
 - Contract management plan 120
 - The contract manager 121
 - Contract management plan content 122
 - Compliance matrix 123
 - Step-by-step enforcement pressure 128
 - Honesty, fraud and misrepresentation 129

- 09 Integration 133
 - Role of the integrator 135
 - Birth of the acquisition profession 138

- 10 Commissioning 141
 - Defining commissioning 141
 - Commissioning is not just a celebration ceremony 143
 - Summary 144

11 Assessing effectiveness 145

Assessing the effectiveness of the acquisition 147

12 Conclusions 149

Overview 149

Procurement and contract management: factors to consider 149

Main objectives 149

Appendix A Sample source selection statement 155

Appendix B Procurement plan template 157

Appendix C Example of a cure notice 163

Appendix D Example of an award fee determination 165

Appendix E Examples of justifications for dispensing with competition 167

Appendix F Homework for an intelligent client 169

Appendix G The contract manager: the most important commercial player on the pitch 173

Appendix H Outline for a contract management plan 177

Appendix I Summary of intelligent acquisition system 181

Appendix J Some dos, don'ts and suggestions in contract formation 183

Appendix K Helpful tips for the intelligent client and the procurement professional 197

References and further reading 199

Index 201

Downloadable resources available here:

www.koganpage.com/GCL