

Contents

List of figures and tables	ix
Acknowledgements	x
Preface to the third edition	xi
Walkthrough of textbook features and online resources	xii
Chapter 1 Human resource management
1.1 What do HR managers actually do?	3
1.2 CIPD ‘profession for the future’	4
1.3 The evolution of HRM	5
1.4 Perspectives in the management of people	8
1.5 The theory of human resource management	9
1.6 Summing up theoretical HRM	11
1.7 HRM in practice	15
1.8 Strategic human resource management (SHRM)	15
1.9 Best-fit models	16
1.10 Best-practice models of strategy and HRM	17
1.11 Some key themes in human resource management in the twenty-first century	18
1.12 Summing up	20
Chapter 2 Employee resourcing
2.1 Recruitment and selection	25
2.2 Why would anyone want to work for you? Employer Brand	27
2.3 Job analysis, job descriptions and personnel specifications	29
2.4 Recruitment and selection (hiring)	29
2.5 Strategic selection	30
2.6 Some common selection techniques	31
2.7 So how effective is selection?	33
2.8 Recruitment and selection in practice	33
2.9 The ‘gig economy’	35
2.10 International resourcing	38
2.11 Talent management	38
2.12 Employee exit and release	38
2.13 Resourcing and diversity	41
Chapter 3 Learning and development
3.1 Definitions	50
3.2 A brief overview of learning principles	50
3.3 Levels of learning	51
3.4 Kolb’s learning cycle	52

3.5	Transfer of learning	53
3.6	Explicit and tacit knowledge	54
3.7	Some common learning and development methods	54
3.8	Developing people in practice	55
3.9	The process of formal learning interventions	57
3.10	Informal learning	60
3.11	Organisational learning and knowledge management	60
3.12	Management development	63
Chapter 4	Employee relations
4.1	What does employee relations mean today?	69
4.2	Dealing with conflict	71
4.3	Negotiation and bargaining in employee relations	75
4.4	Collective bargaining	77
4.5	Dispute resolution: conciliation, arbitration and mediation	79
4.6	Informal employee relations processes	79
4.7	Industrial action	80
4.8	Employee engagement	81
4.9	Employee voice	83
4.10	International comparisons	84
Chapter 5	HRM and the design of work
5.1	Scientific management	92
5.2	Developments following scientific management	93
5.3	The influence of motivation theory on the design of work	94
5.4	Teamworking	98
5.5	HRM implications arising from team-based working	100
5.6	Organisational design	101
5.7	The 'flexible firm' and HRM	103
5.8	The search for flexibility	104
Chapter 6	Managing performance
6.1	The contribution of performance management	112
6.2	The components of performance management	113
Chapter 7	Managing rewards
7.1	Pay systems	125
7.2	Money matters	126
7.3	Types of payment system	126
7.4	Non-pay benefits	127
7.5	Putting it all together: the 'cafeteria' approach to managing rewards	128
7.6	Job evaluation	130

Chapter 8	The global context of HRM: international and comparative HRM
8.1	Approaches to IHRM	138
8.2	National cultures: the work of hofstede	138
8.3	International talent management	141
8.4	IHRM and the selection process: selecting expatriates	142
8.5	Expatriate re-entry	142
8.6	Comparative HRM: convergence and divergence	145
8.7	Trust and leadership	146
Chapter 9	Contemporary issues and future trends
9.1	High-involvement or high-performance work practices	153
9.2	HR analytics	155
9.3	HRM and leadership	155
9.4	HRM and change management	159
9.5	New forms of employment utilising information and communication technology (ICT)	160
9.6	Corporate social responsibility	161
9.7	Ethics and HRM	163
9.8	Future trends in human resource management	163
9.9	To conclude	164
	References	165
	Index	177