

CONTENTS

Preface vii

- Myth 1 Marketing communications haven't fundamentally changed 1
- Myth 2 Marketing is just communications 9
- Myth 3 Sales and marketing are basically the same 17
- Myth 4 I don't need marketing – my company is too small and business comes from word of mouth 23
- Myth 5 I don't need a marketing plan 29
- Myth 6 Marketing is solely the responsibility of the marketing department 37
- Myth 7 Ultimately, people buy on price 43
- Myth 8 Pricing is a matter of charging the highest amount possible 49
- Myth 9 The purpose of a brand is to build awareness 59
- Myth 10 Every business is a brand 67
- Myth 11 Business-to-business purchases are purely based on logic 73
- Myth 12 Business-to-business and business-to-consumer marketing are completely different 81
- Myth 13 Effective marcom means running a series of great campaigns 89
- Myth 14 A successful business requires a compelling USP 97
- Myth 15 Market positioning is all about the product or service on offer 107
- Myth 16 Visuals are the most important aspect of any marketing communications 117
- Myth 17 Our offering must attract the largest audience possible 125

Myth 18	Demography is the best way to segment your market 133
Myth 19	The focus of marketing communications should be a company's products or services 143
Myth 20	We are operating in a service economy 151
Myth 21	The customer buying journey is no longer a linear process 159
Myth 22	I instinctively understand my customer 167
Myth 23	Marketing can still rely on the traditional purchase funnel 175
Myth 24	Creating content takes too much time and money 183
Myth 25	Social media is nothing more than some alternative channels to market 189
Myth 26	Every business requires a 'higher purpose' 197
	Index 205