

CONTENTS

About the authors viii

Acknowledgements x

Introduction: Why strategic decision making needs to become discovery-led 1

01 The world is changing, but we don't always see it 13

The changing nature of change 13

Classical strategy models only partially helpful 19

Yes, we struggle to join the dots 30

Summary 34

References 34

02 Organizational inertia: Why enterprises find it difficult to change 37

Yes, you have a strategy 37

Organizations and 'becoming' 38

Emergent strategy meets path dependency 40

Why organizational momentum is unchallenged 46

The personal element in decision making 49

A-rational decision making 58

Summary 58

References 59

03 Top-down decisions 61

We expect leaders to lead 62

Leadership responsibility, legal ramifications 62

The power of vision, purpose and guiding lights 64

Does step-change necessitate top-down decision making? 65

Challenges with top-down decision making 67

Summary 80
References 81

04 Middle-out decisions 85

Strategy is what happens when you're not in the room 86
What middle-out decisions look like 86
Unconscious decision making and influence 88
'Middle-out' decisions rather than 'bottom-up' 90
Middle-out decisions and their challenge to strategic intent 92
Guiding middle-out decision making 96
Middle-out decisions can lead to a step-change 98
Heading towards agile 99
The self-tuning organization 102
Perpetuating the status quo 102
Summary 104
References 105

05 Discovery-led decision making 107

What does a more contingent approach to decision making look like? 108
How the phases of a discovery-led approach fit together 122
Marrying strategy and innovation through an evolutionary approach 124
Summary 126
References 127

06 Mode I: Framing 129

The importance of solving the right problem 129
Obstacles to framing 133
How to frame? 144
Summary 156
References 157

07 Mode II: Experimenting 161

Moving from thought to action 161
Obstacles to experimenting 164

How to experiment? 168
Summary 176
References 177

08 Mode III: Scaling 179

Doing more of what works 179
Obstacles to scaling 180
How to scale? 184
Summary 197
References 198

09 Implications for organizations 201

The changing face of strategy 201
Getting connected 204
Strategy levers and ‘big rocks’ 205
The tridextrous organization 206
Shifting energy 207
Working five to nine 210
Organizational correctives for collective decision making 211
The shift to middle-out decisions 214
Towards an adaptive management model 216
References 218

10 The force that is you 221

Discovery-led decision making and tridexterity 221
Awareness and beyond 225
Personal bias 225
Leaders as situational architects 228
The reality distortion field 228
Twenty-first-century attributes 232
Shifting towards distributed leadership: throwing down the challenge 234
References 235

Index 237