

CONTENTS

List of figures and tables xii

Preface xiii

Acknowledgements xvii

How to use this book xix

PART ONE

01 Why compliance isn't working 5

Fatal flaws and collateral damage 5

Culture 7

How to be ineffective 7

'Defensible compliance' 9

Compliance as impediment: Doing the legal minimum 10

The Age of Damage 11

Making compliance effective 12

What creates effective compliance? 13

Zero harm 14

Compliance, culture and ethics 14

In a nutshell 15

10 reasons why compliance fails 17

Note 20

02 The meaning, origins and role of compliance and ethics 21

Why have compliance? 21

Compliance: A short history 22

What is 'compliance'? 29

What are 'ethics'? 30

What about 'business ethics'? 32

What is 'integrity'? 34

Compliance and ethics in practice	35
So, what is a 'compliance and ethics programme'?	37
The consequences of failure	39
The rewards of success	40
Notes	40

03 Barriers to success 41

'Here be dragons'	41
The dragon of doubt	42
Three attitudes: The sceptic, the champion and the in-betweeners	43
So... who is responsible for compliance?	45
Psychology and human nature	45
Nudge theory	45
Danger? What danger? Burning platforms	47
Silence	48
Incentives	50
Culture	51
Resources: 'The cuckoo in the nest'	56
Management time and attention	58
Poor skills, bad approaches	59
Short-termism	59
Notes	60

04 Looking for answers 61

Mission impossible?	61
So is it all about culture?	62
The art of persuasion	63
One size doesn't fit all	64
Personal versus business values	66
Simplicity	67
Storytelling	68
Hire the right people	70
Compliance: With us, not against us	71
Bureaucracy can be good!	72

Integrated compliance and ethics	74
A culture of responsible accountability	76
Incentivizing accountability	77
What's in it for me?	78
A little nudge can deliver big change...	79
Technology: Friend or foe?	79
What if doing the 'right thing' ethically looks like the 'wrong thing' commercially ?	80
In it for the long term	82
Stop saying 'compliance'!	82
Keep it alive	82
Notes	83

PART TWO

05 The anatomy of a compliance and ethics programme 89

The road to compliance	89
Starting points	90
What about small and medium-sized enterprises?	90
Key programme components	92
The nine components used in this book	93
The role of Compliance and Ethics Committees	102
'Hanging in the balance'	103
Useful sources of guidance	106
Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life	112
Notes	113

06 Top-level commitment 115

Introduction	115
Tone at the top...	116
... and everywhere else	116
What senior leadership commitment looks like	117
Looking for champions – and working with them	125
What makes top-level commitment?	126
Why	130

Top-level commitment as an ‘enabler’	131
Top-level commitment through ‘enforcement’	134
In conclusion	135
Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life	135
Note	137

07 Risk assessment and due diligence 139

Before we begin	139
The psychology of risk	140
The problem with assessing risk	141
Why risk assess?	142
What is ‘reasonable risk management’?	143
When risk assess?	144
Risk assessment in compliance and ethics programme planning and design	146
Third parties’ compliance programmes	160
In summary	164
Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life	166
Notes	167

08 Code of conduct and policies 169

We the people	169
What is a code – and what is it for?	171
The beginning, not the end	173
How to create an effective code of conduct	175
Corporate policies	179
How much detail should a code provide?	180
‘Never mind the supplier’s own code – make them comply with ours’	182
Some common but problematic policy areas	184
When there’s a conflict between your minimum standards and local culture or laws	203
Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life	204
Notes	205

09 Communication, education and training 207

La grande illusion 207

Communication versus education and training 209

Creating awareness 209

Training versus education 210

Making training land with your audience 210

Making e-learning more effective 219

Communication 220

Collective action – including communication with governments, ministries, local communities, NGOs, embassies 224

Always remember... 227

Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life 227

Notes 229

10 Whistle-blowing hotline and speak-up culture 231

The importance of whistle-blowing 231

The problem with whistle-blowing 232

The importance of creating a process people can trust 234

Regional and cultural differences 235

Anonymity 237

Investigation and remediation of whistle-blowing cases 240

What types of cases should be regarded or treated as ‘whistle-blowing’? 241

Why use an external whistle-blowing helpline? 242

Making it live and work 244

Branding 244

The importance of communicating success 245

The characteristics of a speak-up culture 248

Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life 249

Notes 250

11 Procedures and controls 251

What are ‘procedures and controls’, and what are they for? 251

Identifying where procedures are necessary 252

- How procedures can help 253
- Types of procedure and controls 255
- The dreaded compliance clause 258
- Some key procedures and controls specific to compliance and ethics 261
- Having a register 265
- Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life 265
- Notes 267

12 Investigations, remediation and enforcement 269

- When the need for an investigation arises 269
- The importance of enforcement 270
- Being fair, consistent and even-handed 273
- Having the right skills and guidance 274
- Managing investigations: Some good practice guidance 275
- The investigator's perspective and the pitfalls to beware 286
- Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life 290
- Note 291

13 Assurance and continuous improvement 293

- The need for assurance 293
- Monitoring and auditing 294
- Implementing a compliance and ethics assurance framework 295
- Quantitative versus qualitative assurance 303
- An independent compliance monitor 306
- Measurement and reporting 307
- The road to continuous improvement 310
- Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life 312

14 Implementation: The Compliance and Ethics function – and everyone else 315

- Hammers and nails 315
- The position of the Compliance and Ethics function in the organization 316

Structuring the Compliance and Ethics function	317
Examples of how Compliance and Ethics might be structured	325
Centralized versus decentralized Compliance and Ethics function	328
Centralized versus decentralized compliance and ethics programme	328
Implementing a compliance programme in JVs, fiercely autonomous subsidiaries and conglomerates	330
Deploying the right skills and resources	332
The (very) ideal model of a chief ethics and compliance officer	332
Role description for a chief ethics and compliance officer	336
‘Mind the gap’	338
Other specialist functional responsibilities	338
The role of management	340
The role of employees	342
So in the end, who is responsible for effective compliance?	343
Across the minefield: Compliance and ethics meets real life	343
Note	344

A final word: So what’s the future of compliance and ethics? 345

Index 349