

CONTENTS

Foreword	xi
Preface	xii
Chapter summaries	xvi
About the authors	xix
Acknowledgements	xx

Introduction: mapping the content marketing territory 1

Definition dilemma	1
Group 1: Content-as-‘just marketing’ definition approaches	3
Group 2: trade-discipline-based definition approaches	5
Group 3: consumer-centric definition approaches	6
Group 4: definition approaches based on narrative/aesthetic feel	14
Group 5: do we need a definition at all?	18
References	21

PART ONE Content marketing: a new and better promise? 25

01 Why content is seen as the solution to current marketing challenges 27

Reasons to see Content as a potential solution	28
References	40

02 Experience Economy: brand and customer experience as Content enablers 44

What has Content got to do with the Experience Economy?	45
The Experience Economy: a bigger promise	53
References	59

03 How Content can help build sustainable brands with better purposes 62

- Purpose starts with why 62
- Content starts with purpose? 73
- The rise of purposewash 77
- Restoration of trust 81
- References 83

PART TWO How Content changes the way we all do business 87

04 Creative agency perspective: how Content impacts creativity, process and revenue 89

- Operating speeds 90
- Operating models 91
- The binary equation of agencies and its two tribes 96
- A new set of optics to resolve the binary equation 100
- References 111

05 Media agency perspective: how Content impacts creativity, process and revenue 113

- Eco-system changes driving media agency reinvention 116
- New roles for the media agency 121
- Impact of Content on the business model 124
- Creative and media agencies as agents for contextualizing choice 126
- The role of data and media agencies in creating ‘empathic media’ 128
- References 130

PART THREE Creativity, media planning and the role of Content in the consumer journey 133

06 Content distribution and its role in the consumer journey 135

- Main conceptual and organizational challenges with CONTEXT 139

Content as advertising	142
The role of Content in search	144
The role of Content in conversion	145
The role of Content post-sale and in customer service	149
References	153

07 Content and storytelling in the age of user data abundance 155

The promise of data	156
Problems with data – hype, waste and narrow-mindedness...	161
Towards a better data promise	165
References	167

08 The evolution of Content formats: from text to video to AR/VR to AI... 169

The new age of affectiveness	169
New storytelling models for immersive spaces	172
Some possible Content challenges with the new affective spaces	182
References	184

PART FOUR How to measure and evaluate content marketing 187

09 Key measurement issues relating to content marketing 189

Key strategic challenges	190
Measuring the right things: evaluation ‘canvasses’	193
Measuring things right: key metrics debates	196
References	203

PART FIVE Content marketing: not such a new and better promise? 207

10 The rejecter's manifesto: key arguments against the content marketing 'mirage' 209

Content marketing is nothing new 210

Content is about hyped-up delivery systems, not ideas 214

Content doesn't work – brands don't understand how attention flows online 217

TV is still doing well – even with young people 221

References 224

11 Content marketing and ethics: challenges, threats and balancing acts 226

The 'dark comms' challenge: manipulation
by opacity 226

The crumbling separation between advertising and editorial 232

The 'empathic media and datafication of emotional lives'
challenge 240

The 'Huxleyan' challenge: Content as the tool for amusing ourselves to death 244

References 247

Conclusions 250

Index 259

Online chapters and downloadable resources are available [www.koganpage.com/strategic-content-marketing] or please visit strategiccontentmarketing.eu for additional related content from authors.